Historical/Biographical Note

Dominicana was a journal published by the student brothers of the Dominica Province of St. Joseph. The publication began in 1916 at the brother's House of Studies in Washington, D.C. The student brothers published a variety of articles on theological topics as well as news about the Order. Other Dominican congregations, including Dominican Sisters of Houston, also submitted brief news updated concerning their congregations for publication. In 1968 publication stopped; however, as of 2011, publication resumed in the form of a daily blog.
